Las Fincas Rosado

This wine has a complex production process and is a perfect example of the precision required for the crafting of a quality rosé.

Our aim is to create a rosé with a subtle balance between structure and finesse, a fresh wine with a very complex nose dominated by discreet and elegant red fruit and hints of white fruit and flowers. Its appearance is pale due to its low colour intensity, although this is a side-benefit rather than the main objective.

Behind this unique wine lies a very careful winemaking process: it is crafted from a selection of Garnacha Tinta and Tempranillo vineyard plots at Finca Legardeta or from the north of Navarra which are under the influence of the Atlantic-Continental climate. These grapes are harvested when they reach their perfect point of maturity and the wine is produced according to the traditional "sangrado" (bleeding) method.
